INTRODUCTION TO RESTORATIVE PRACTICES IN SCHOOLS

Melbourne

Friday, 17 March, 2023

The philosophy of Restorative Practice views relationships and people as the most important aspect of schools and communities.

Schools embracing this philosophy prioritise building positive relationships, creating supportive learning environments, and establishing fair, democratic systems across their community. A restorative approach seeks to address and repair the harm caused to people and relationships.

CONTENT INCLUDES:

- What it means to have a restorative mindset
- Neuro-scientific and psychological foundations of restorative approaches
- Using restorative language, dialogue, & processes to repair harm in a range of settings

THIS COURSE IS SUITABLE FOR:

All educators, in both primary and secondary settings, looking to develop the skills required to successfully build and maintain positive classroom community.

TESTIMONIALS

I just want to reiterate our sincere appreciation for having led such compelling and engaging sessions. Your professional generosity, associated with your leadership and expertise, is simply unparalleled. As an organisation, ESF will continue to grow and develop, thanks to leaders like you.

Jacques-Olivier Perche

- Head of Professional Learning Strategic Performance and Quality Assurance English Schools Foundation, Hong Kong

We have been working with Restorative Pathways for a number of years and have found that our staff and students have greatly benefitted from Kristy's knowledge of and enthusiasm for restorative practices. Through our work with Kristy, we have been able to embed restorative practices into our student management policies, which has resulted in more positive relationships amongst all stakeholders, leading to improved student outcomes and wellbeing. Thank you Kristy for sharing your insights and expertise in bringing about real organisational transformation in this area.
